A Cyclone of Laughter.

Music and humor will hold high carnival at the Opera House on Thursday, November 26, matinee and night, when Sprague's company of comedians, augmented by the famous Black Hussar band and Star orchestra, present their latest comedy success, "A Social Session." The play is said to be intensely funny and to possess rare charm and originality, while the scenes and situations follow one upon the other with a naturalness and unique humor that fairly captivates the audience. Few comedies have embodied in them so many delightful melodies, and the attention of the listener is absorbed from beginning to end. The company carries a superb orchestra that is an attraction in itself, and necessary to a smooth and perfect production of the play.

AN INTERVIEW

With a Roanoke Enterprise That Moves Along in a Quiet Way. Yet Does a Large Business of the Kind.

A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE TIMES walked into the Roanoke Steam Laundry. The first man he encountered was Mr. J. W. Ammen.

"Where are you from, Mr. Ammen?"

"I am from Botetourt county, near Fincastle."

"How long have you been in Roanoke?"

"I came to Big Lick in 1876, and have been here ever since."

"How did you come to go into the laundry business?"

"Well, a laundry was started here and the people were unsuccessful, and I bought out their plant and have continually added to it, until I now have all the machinery necessary to run a first-class laundry."

"Mr. Ammen, do you object to showing me through your establishment?"

"No, sir; come this way. Here are two washing machines of twenty-five shirts capacity."

"What is this machine?"

"That is a rinsing machine, where shirts, collars, etc., are put in wet, but come out nearly dry. I will show you how it works. Now, you see me put the clothes in like this and start the machine in motion."

"How does the rotary motion cause the machine to rinse the clothes?"

"Why it is done by centrifugal force. They go from the rinsing machine to the starch machine, where they are dropped in with a bucket of starch and then the machine is started in motion."

"What machine is this?"

"Why, that is my collar and cuff ironer, and you see how systematically it is done. This small machine is the dampener, where the collars and cuffs are dampened before going to the ironer. That barrel is starch."

"What machines are those over there?"

"Those are two new machines I have not used at all as yet. One is a new body ironer, the other for ironing neck bands and wristbands. Now walk up stairs and I will show you what I have up there. This is a St. Clair shirt-front ironer, and this one is the Palmer ironer. The little machine is a shirt-press."

"How many hands do you employ?"

"About fifteen."

"Who are the principal ones?"

"Daniel K. Ammen, my brother is my book-keeper; W. L. Black, manager, Tommy McFall is my young man that drives the wagon and attends to calling for and delivering clothes, and E. N. Black attends to the engine room."

"What is that frame over there?"

"That is for curtains. I can wash all kinds of curtains and get them perfectly clean, and they look like new."

"Mr. Ammen, your machinery seems new, at least most of it."

"Yes, I have put in at least eighteen hundred dollars in machinery and other improvements in 1891."

"What about outside work? Do you get much work to do from the adjacent towns?"

"I don't know what you call 'much work.' I will give you the different places, viz: Bramwell, W. Va.; Freemans, W. Va.; Richlands, Va.; Graham, Va.; Dublin, Va.; Pulaski, Va.; Radford, Va. I have regular customers in all these places, and a great many send to me irregularly."

"You send for and deliver clothes free. Do you not?"

"Oh, yes; my telephone number is 116 and my place of business is 129 Kirk avenue s. w., and I guarantee satisfaction every time, and anyone that is not suited will do me a great favor to report the same. My engine is a fifteen horse power one and I claim that no laundry can do any better work than I do. And you can say to the people in Roanoke and out of Roanoke if they will send me their work that I guarantee prompt delivery and the work to be executed in the best manner."

A GRAND STORE.

The Best Store of the Kind This Side of New York.

YES, we can say this without contradiction. Everything has been newly arranged. The painters have nearly completed their work, and Mr. J. Moyer, since buying out A. Wright & Co., has made many improvements and has made many additions. He keeps the most polite clerks, and they know how to suit the people of Roanoke with shoes. Mr. Moyer says that no shoe store shall compete with him, either in style, quality or price, and we would add, from what he says he means business. This gentleman comes from Charlotte, N. C., where he enjoyed the finest business reputation. In coming to Roanoke he wishes the people to know that he intends to serve them here with the finest goods and at the lowest prices that can be afforded, leaving only a living profit.

Furniture, and Where to Get It.

SOME people think by buying only from the oldest houses is the best. Others believe in helping the new man; others believe the "new broom sweeps clean," but prices and goods tell. If you wish furniture, go to Copper & Stone, 10 Salem avenue.

Tailor-made Suits.

LEWIS does not stand back for any of them. He started in a small way, but his business has increased to such dimensions that he has fooled all the other tailors. Call to see him. 105 Henry street, rear First National Bank.

Booth & Co.

THESE gentlemen know how to cater to the young people. All the nice candies, nuts, fruits, bon bons, etc. Their beautiful store is 112 Commerce street, rear Salem avenue.

ONE-pound boxes of mixed candies suitable for mailing at Catogni's, 50 Salem avenue.

The Fires Still Come Upon Us.

YES, we not only have them in Roanoke, but in New York. We take advantage of those in New York. We have an agent there and he buys all bankrupt stocks and stocks damaged by fire. We buy these goods in large lots and we can sell at lower prices. We have clothing, gents' furnishings, men's shoes, boots, gum boots, etc. The ladies can find all kinds of dress goods, ladies' underwear, hosiery, shoes, hats, bonnets (we make a specialty of our millinery department) and can say to the ladies that as for cloaks they should always come to us as we are headquarters for cloaks, jackets, etc. Please remember, no one can undersell us as we buy too largely. Come to see us. Borlin's Auction House, 12 and 14 Salem avenue and 11 Railroad avenue.

"The Dickens."

THIS is the heading of an attractive advertisement which appears on the first page of THE TIMES this morning. Do not be shocked at this seemingly slangy head, but read the balance of the "ad," and you will find that it is very appropriate. For the benefit of those readers who may not have seen it yet we will give a little explanation. The advertisement is that of Geo. Gravatt, the popular book dealer and stationer, and when he says "The Dickens," in such an emphatic manner, he means that he is selling Dickens's works in all styles of binding and quality at heretofore unheard-of prices. For further particulars see "ad" on first page, or call at his store, 32 Salem avenue.

"Where Did You Get That Hat?"

AND that suit of clothes, overcoat, and especially that pretty red necktie? Why, you are dressed more stylishly than I ever saw you before! Where did you get the lay-out, anyway?"

"I got them of P. Adler, the One-Price Clothier, 130 Salem avenue. I always patronize him because he keeps the best line in the city and when he says anything is right, you can believe him."

"Where did you say the store was?"

"130 Salem avenue." "Well, I need a new suit of clothes, and I will go and see Mr. Adler right away."

This dialogue was overheard by a TIMES reporter yesterday, and serves to show how popular Adler is.

A Place of Beauty.

IN wandering over the city of Roanoke the other day attention was called by a stranger to several displays in different windows; but when we came to D. L. Solomon's, the popular jeweler, 108 Salem avenue, he stopped in amazement and said this window would do credit to a much larger place than Roanoke. He saw a souvenir spoon of Roanoke and stepped in and bought one, saying it was the neatest souvenir spoon he has seen. Solomon knows his business and, for a young man, deserves much credit for the business he has built up.

The Old Year Is Nearly Done.

AND Christmas will soon be here. Of course you will want to give your friends and relatives some present on this joyful and festive holiday, and nothing could be more suitable than some nice article of jewelry. Now the best place in the city to buy jewelry is at D. L. Solomon's, 108 Salem avenue. He keeps the finest line of diamonds, watches, clocks, silverware, opera glasses and everything that is kept by a first class jeweler. Just take a look at his show window and be convinced.

They Kick and Make Threats.

BUT what good does it do? Let them put up or shut up. If they can't afford it, why kick? The truth is, they don't know how to buy clothing, gents' furnishings, neck-wear, kid gloves, hats, caps, etc. for men, boys and children, like P. Adler, the "old wheel horse" at the business. His place is 130 Salem avenue. Call to see him.

Shoe Fly.

THE old tune is about played, but when you wish the best shoes, go to Goldstein, 31 Salem avenue.

It will cost you but one cent to write the Hobbie Music Co., Roanoke, Va., for prices and terms on pianos and organs, and it may save you $15 to $25 on an organ and $50 to $75 on a piano. Don't you think this would pay? Try it.
